

Washington DC area folk-singer Lisa Moscatiello will perform in Victory Park on August 11th at 6pm as part of the Manchester City Library's Family Fare series. Lisa has been hailed as "one of the best voices in the business" by Philadelphia's legendary folk DJ Gene Shay.

While attending Yale University as a history major, Lisa studied voice with Jill Soltero of Yale's opera department. She also sang and toured with the a capella group Redhot and Blue, whose repertoire included classic pop and jazz songs. She combined her love of pop and traditional folk while a member of the British folk-rock band The New St. George until 1995. Lisa's debut solo album, "Innocent When You Dream" was named Contemporary Folk Album of the Year. Her more recent album, "Second Avenue" is out on Wind River Records. Both will be offered for sale during intermission of her Victory Park performance.
